Overview

26 Project and Program teams across Cooperative Extension representing 36 institutions attended the Impact Collaborative in Atlanta for a unique opportunity to create impactful results at the local level by increasing Cooperative Extension's organizational readiness and capacity for innovation and change. Teams were connected with skills, tools, resources, and partners that helped expand and deepen their impact.

Partners representing organizations external to Cooperative Extension were invited to attend the Impact Collaborative Summit and participated in our first national Partner Forum, with a guided discussion by leaders from the Institute for the Future. This forum was designed to connect private and public sector organizations focused on community impact, including leaders from Cooperative Extension, and look for future opportunities to engage collectively. After the forum, partners had the opportunity to spend time talking with teams and learning more about the work they are doing to make an impact in their states, locales, and across the nation.

After three days of hard work, teams participated in a LaunchFest where they presented their project or program to a panel of partners and Cooperative Extension leaders. As a result of their work, teams deemed most ready to launch within their region have a pre-approved application for a $5000 grant that brings new capacity to their project. All teams have an opportunity to apply for a $5000 grant to bring new capacity to their project and attend the October Impact Collaborative Summit.

eXtension will continue its support of all project and program teams through Engage & Empower Online, our new resource that offers Impact Collaborative teams and Innovation Facilitators unique professional development opportunities including webinars and learning circles, exclusive access to publications and presentations, access to a new online version of the Impact Collaborative Innovation Skill-Building Experience tool, and a place where the Impact Collaborative can continue to connect teams with the resources they may need to continue project or program growth towards increasing innovation and local impact.

New Program Framework and the Impact Collaborative Tools

Project and program teams were guided by assigned primary and secondary coaches (Impact Collaborative Facilitators) and key informants to use the new Propelling Community Impact framework and rubric to gauge their “growth stage” in five key areas, including who their audience is, why/purpose of the project/program, what the project/program entails, how it will be implemented, and is it ready to “launch”. To help teams answer the critical questions to a successful project, teams and their coaches used the rubric as a self-assessment tool at the beginning of the Summit and again at the end of the Summit to see their growth, if any, in those key areas of success. Coaches used the Impact Collaborative Innovation Skill-Building Kit Workbook and additional tools like Persona templates, Team Readiness Checklist, and the Project Roadmap to support teams “where they are” throughout the Summit. Visualization Station Key Informants provided additional help for teams to uncover programmatic gaps, focus, and/or “tell their story” using concept mapping, systems mapping, ripple mapping, asset mapping, graphic recordings, etc. Launchfest Appraisers used the Propelling Community Impact Rubric to rate Team presentations/projects for readiness for launching and additional opportunities such as an opportunity grant and/or additional mentoring post Summit.
